Friends will be interested to learn that Wallace F. Watt, a former Barre boy, has been chosen one of the president's guard of honor of 250 American soldiers at the Versailles peace conference. These 250 men were all picked for appearance, intelligence and military bearing and are the only American soldiers on duty at Versailles during the peace conference.

The affair will be held in the Woodmen hall, Worthen block, Saturday night. Among the speakers who will be called upon are City Clerk James Mackay, William Barclay and J. K. Pirie. The committee in charge is President Hugh Christie, Vice-President Charles Lee, Secretary Treasurer Robert Inglis, George Robertson and William Deans.

A woman's purse, opened and yawning empty, was picked up this morning near the refuse can at the junction of North Main, Elm and Washington streets and its presence there may point to robbery, as it is not considered probable that the owner would throw away an article which was in good state of preservation. One theory is that a robber, after removing the contents of the purse, hurled the receptacle away as of no use to him or her and because it might prove damaging evidence if found on the person. The police have received no report of the theft of a purse lately. The purse can be seen at The Times office, where it was brought by the finder.

After eight months' voluntary service in the United States army, seven weeks of which were spent in the trenches of northern France, Sergeant John Amedy of Barre felt the longing for home and for sight of his wife and four children so strong that after returning to this country he could not wait for a furlough and came through from Colonia, N. J., without that necessary paper. That took about all his available cash and he did not have the money with which to purchase a return ticket. So Sergeant Amedy has been staying at his home here, making no effort at concealment but nevertheless violating a regulation of the service. Yesterday the call came from the army camp at Colonia, N. J., to hold Sergeant Amedy, and the police took him in charge at once to await the arrival of a guard from Fort Ethan Allen. The guard came to Barre this forenoon and took the Barre man in charge. Sergeant Amedy is a member of the 49th U. S. infantry.
